HISTORY

- Opened in 1924 as Charleston's "Grand Dame," the largest hotel in the Carolinas with 312 guest rooms
- Featured many new modern amenities for the 1920's, such as private bathrooms in each room, printing press, barber shop, ice making plant & automatic elevators
- Designed by renowned architect W.L. Stoddart
- Charleston's first radio station broadcast was from the top floor of the hotel
- The hotel printed menus in house
- The original restaurant was in the Colonial Ballroom
- Designated as a historical property by the National Trust for Historic Preservation
- Locally owned and managed since 1989
